

Emanuel Mandel discusses living in Israel; immigrating to the United States; life in New York; moving to Philadelphia; becoming an American citizen; getting an formal education; meeting his wife and starting a family; his religious upbringing; joining the ROTC; his views on Israel; working for B'nai Brith as a social worker; the importance of Holocaust remembrance; working for the Peace Corps; speaking publicly about his experiences during the Holocaust; how the memory of his experiences during the Holocaust have affected his daily life; and taking his family to Europe.