

Gerald S. von Halle discusses his experiences while in hiding in Amsterdam, Holland; his father's arrest by the Gestapo; the relationship between German Jews and Dutch Jews in Holland; being liberated by the Canadian Army; being arrested by the Dutch police after liberation because he was a German citizen; immigrating to the United States; American culture and Politics; staying at Rabbi Steven Weiss's refugee center in New York; daily life in New York; meeting his wife; his views on religion; working in sales; starting a family; how his experiences during the Holocaust affected his political beliefs; speaking to groups about his experiences during the war; and his feelings about Israel.