

Leon Chameides discusses life in hiding at the Univ monastery in the Ukraine; his liberation from hiding by the Russians; traveling to Santa Yura in Lvov to escape the Russians; his reunion with his brother; staying with family members until the end of the war; moving to western Poland to escape Stalin; the black market in Poland; anti-Semitism; immigrating to England; daily life in England; immigrating to the United States on the Queen Elizabeth I; daily life in New York; remembering the Holocaust and his views on being a survivor; getting married and moving to Boston; joining the Coast Guard and moving to Ohio; raising his family in Connecticut; reconnecting to others that hid in the monastery during the war; going back to Poland; and his thoughts on genocide.